DANIEL WEBB OF AUSTRALIA SELECTED AS FINALIST FOR GLOBAL PLURALISM AWARD

ON WORLD REFUGEE DAY, GLOBAL CENTRE FOR PLURALISM ANNOUNCES ADVOCATE FOR ASYLUM SEEKERS IS A TOP CANDIDATE FOR PRESTIGIOUS AWARD

NEW YORK – June 20, 2017 – In recognition of outstanding achievements to support more inclusive societies worldwide, the Global Centre for Pluralism, an international education and research organization founded by His Highness the Aga Khan and the Government of Canada, announced the 10 finalists for the 2017 Global Pluralism Award. Commemorating World Refugee Day on June 20, Australian Daniel Webb was chosen as a finalist for this year’s inaugural award for his work to protect and promote the rights of refugees and people seeking asylum.

“We are witnessing societies worldwide becoming more deeply divided. The need for respect and acceptance across differences is all the more urgent,” said John McNee, Secretary General of the Global Centre for Pluralism. “The work of the 10 finalists of the Global Pluralism Award, and all the nominees, is a testament to what can be achieved when pluralism is put into practice.”

The finalists were selected by an international Award jury, chaired by the Rt. Hon. Joe Clark, former Prime Minister of Canada, comprised of five independent members from various disciplines. The jury reviewed over 200 nominations from 43 countries. After careful consideration, the finalists were selected for their extraordinary, innovative work to advance respect for diversity.

Daniel Webb from the Human Rights Law Centre stood out among the nominations for his work to achieve systemic change by using legal action, public advocacy, campaigning, and engagement with the United Nations to protect and promote the rights of refugees and people seeking asylum.

In 2016, Webb worked with a broad coalition to prevent the return of almost 300 asylum seekers to Australia's offshore detention centers in the Republic of Nauru and Manus Island in Papua New Guinea. His efforts helped to secure the release of children held in mainland immigration detention centers.

Of the 10 finalists, three winners will be recognized at the inaugural Global Pluralism Award Ceremony, which takes place in the fall of 2017 in Ottawa, Canada. Each winner will receive $50,000 to further their work.
