FUNDACIÓN CONSTRUIR OF BOLIVIA SELECTED AS FINALIST FOR GLOBAL PLURALISM AWARD

GLOBAL CENTRE FOR PLURALISM ANNOUNCES ORGANIZATION FIGHTING FOR INDIGENOUS RIGHTS IS A TOP CANDIDATE FOR PRESTIGIOUS AWARD

NEW YORK – June 20, 2017 – In recognition of outstanding achievements to support more inclusive societies worldwide, the Global Centre for Pluralism, an international education and research organization founded by His Highness the Aga Khan and the Government of Canada, announced the 10 finalists for the 2017 Global Pluralism Award. Selected by a renowned international jury, Fundación Construir was chosen as a finalist for this year’s inaugural award for their work to promote dialogue between judicial authorities and indigenous peoples in Bolivia.

“We are witnessing societies worldwide becoming more deeply divided. The need for respect and acceptance across differences is all the more urgent,” said John McNee, Secretary General of the Global Centre for Pluralism. “The work of the 10 finalists of the Global Pluralism Award, and all the nominees, is a testament to what can be achieved when pluralism is put into practice.”

The international Award jury, chaired by the Rt. Hon. Joe Clark, former Prime Minister of Canada, is comprised of five independent members from various disciplines. The jury reviewed over 200 nominations from 43 countries. After careful consideration, the finalists were selected for their extraordinary, innovative work to advance respect for diversity.

Fundación Construir (or in English “Construir Foundation”) stood out among the nominations for its work to foster dialogue among policy-makers, judges and indigenous communities. The aim of this dialogue is to implement an intercultural vision of the law that respects indigenous law, as recognized in the Bolivian Constitution. Construir has also worked to promote the autonomy of indigenous communities, providing technical assistance in the development of their treaties.

Fundación Construir has successfully developed and implemented innovative approaches to eradicating violence against women and children, and human trafficking by helping to develop the skills and legal status of hundreds of indigenous women. These women act as community advocates, essentially watchdogs that link remote communities with institutional bodies.

Of the 10 finalists, three winners will be recognized at the inaugural Global Pluralism Award Ceremony, which takes place in the fall of 2017 in Ottawa, Canada. Each winner will receive $50,000 to further their work.
